

I am very concerned with the FCC's decision to review laws prohibiting the same company from owning both newspapers and TV stations in the same area, and limiting the percent of the national audience a single cable company can reach. At this time, more than ever, the public needs access to a broad spectrum of news and opinions, from as many creditable sources as possible, in order to stay informed regarding the very complex issues and events taking place at the global, national and local levels. Consolidation of media control is tantamount to censorship and suppression of free speech.
